BAILEY & GLASSER LAW FIRM CONTINUES EXPANSION WITH NEW OFFICE IN BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Leading Consumer Protection Lawyers John Roddy and Elizabeth Ryan New Partners in Bailey & Glasser's Boston Expansion

Boston, MA - Bailey & Glasser LLP is expanding its law firm with the opening of a new office in Boston, Massachusetts. The firm handles the most challenging and consequential legal issues for clients across the United States. Bailey & Glasser's seventh office will be located in the heart of downtown Boston at 125 Summer Street. The firm's other offices are located in Washington, DC, Springfield, IL, Joliet, IL, Montgomery, AL, Charleston, WV, and Morgantown, WV.

John Roddy and Elizabeth Ryan, of the Boston consumer class action firm Roddy Klein & Ryan, will be joining the firm as partners and establishing the Boston office. They will continue their concentration on representing consumers in class actions, challenging unfair lending practices and violations of state and federal consumer protection statutes.

Mr. Roddy, a graduate of Boston College Law School (J.D., cum laude, 1980), has focused his practice on substantial litigation matters on behalf of consumers. From 1980 - 1987 he served as an Assistant Attorney General in the Massachusetts Attorney General's office and served as Legislative Counsel to the Attorney General in the Executive Bureau from 1986-1987. Mr. Roddy has written and spoken extensively on consumer law and class action litigation and for the past fourteen years has co-chaired the Practising Law Institute's annual conference on Consumer Financial Services Litigation.

Ms. Ryan is a graduate of the Catholic University (J.D., 1985) and practices in the areas of class actions and consumer credit litigation. She has been involved in hundreds of consumer protection related cases and has served as a panelist in trainings on consumer law conducted by the National Consumer Law Center, the Massachusetts Continuing Legal Education and the Florida State Bar. Ms. Ryan is a member of the National Association of Consumer Advocates and a former Consumer Law Fellow at the National Consumer Law Center (1993).

“We first met Brian Glasser and Ben Bailey when we joined forces in 2005 to challenge H&R Block’s refund anticipation loan program,” said John Roddy. “Working together on that case began a professional relationship that led to our respective firms co-counseling other consumer class actions over the past five years. This partnership is a natural outgrowth of our work together, our mutual respect, and shared values.”

“We are excited to be joining such a dynamic and well-respected firm and look forward to an even greater expansion of our consumer litigation practice,” added Elizabeth Ryan.

“John and Elizabeth are wonderful people and great lawyers. Their expertise in consumer protection law will be a great asset not only to our clients in Massachusetts but all over the country,” said Ben Bailey, the firm’s co-founder. “The growth of our firm is a direct result of the passion we have for what we do and the success we have achieved for our clients.”

Bailey & Glasser LLP, headquartered in Charleston, West Virginia, with additional offices in Washington, D.C., Alabama, Illinois and Massachusetts, regularly appears in complex commercial litigation matters, for plaintiffs and defendants, before state and federal courts across the country. The firm’s 35 lawyers are working on cases as diverse as the Toyota sudden acceleration personal injury and class action cases; energy and environmental litigation for state governments, individuals and energy companies; medical malpractice and health care provider disputes; and white collar criminal defense. Bailey & Glasser’s business lawyers also represent substantial clients in energy industries, and have a growing Chinese business development practice.

Roddy and Ryan’s former partner, Gary Klein, together with former RKR attorneys Shennan Kavanagh and Kevin Costello, have formed Klein Kavanagh Costello, LLP (KKC), with an office in Boston. KKC will maintain a concentration in consumer class actions.
