A Note From Founding Partner Ben Bailey

Bailey & Glasser had an amazing year in 2022. Reviewing the highlights of our work only scratches the surface. But here are some examples, with apologies for all the others I don't have room to include -

On the national trial stage, our lawyers took Monsanto and its Roundup product to trial in St. Louis, which settled handsomely four days into the trial for our plaintiff client. In bankruptcy court in Indiana, representing veterans whose hearing was damaged by earplugs manufactured by 3M, we helped defeat 3M's efforts to enjoin prosecution of 230,000 of these cases. We also played a lead role in a trial in New Jersey for talc-injury plaintiffs, challenging efforts by Johnson & Johnson to bankrupt and restructure its subsidiary LTL, using the now-notorious "Texas Two-Step" to avoid trials and move the individual injury cases into bankruptcy court. I am delighted to report that just this week (on Monday, January 23, 2023), the federal Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit agreed with the position we and our co-counsel took when we moved to get the bankruptcy dismissed, and entirely reversed the lower court decision. This appellate victory now allows all the plaintiffs harmed by J&J baby powder to take their cases to trial as guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

2022 was the year where we celebrated the 50th Anniversary of Title IX (the federal law prohibiting gender discrimination by educational institutions receiving federal funds), and our lawyers racked up success after success for female student-athletes at universities, including Brown and Dickinson. The same legal team secured the first Title IX victory ever for male student-athletes, preserving Clemson University's track team, and for female student-athletes there, too.

On the other side of the "V" (as in plaintiff v. defendant), we defended an employment discrimination case in a trial in Florida, where our lawyers and our client stuck to their guns and, on the eve of trial, flipped the cards by settling with the plaintiff and leaving our business client better off than it was before it was sued. In our home state of West Virginia, our trial lawyers - including one lawyer doing her very first trial, who walloped one witness and was so good that the trial judge couldn't believe it was her first - won a total victory in a case involving a natural gas lease.

Our business lawyers sometimes seem to have more fun than anyone. We helped the leading independent Christian movie studio raise monies and navigate the release of multiple movies in 2022 with more to come in 2023 (and we also won a trademark case for them, via summary judgment). We helped launch SI (Sports Illustrated) Tickets, an innovative new ticket purchasing platform - check out their app. We sold multiple businesses for clients, including an industrial scale company, as well as a satellite/earth station service provider to government and commercial customers, in both cases for long-term, classic entrepreneurial clients who are happy and will remain involved with the businesses they built for a transition period.

We've played a key role for a minority business client in efforts to acquire the Oakland Coliseum and a WNBA franchise in Oakland. And none of that includes all the estate planning, will drafting, and tax advice our business lawyers did in 2022.

We had other, more personal, successes that mean the world both to our individual clients and to our lawyers. For example, we represented a man – a dishwasher at a chain restaurant in West Virginia – who was waiting at a bus stop on his way to work when he was falsely accused of assault and battery on two police officers, then detained for nearly 45 days because he couldn't afford his bond. Dogged work by our lawyers turned up exonerating evidence the police had hidden or "lost," and a pattern of abuses within the city's police department worthy of a "60 Minutes" exposé. The result, ultimately, was a complete shakeup in the city's government and a settlement that means our client doesn't have to wash dishes anymore.

On the pro bono front, we helped a young woman from South America endure, and prevail, in a difficult disciplinary proceeding against a fellow student who had assaulted her. Additionally, we put together a lease, pro bono, for a formerly unhoused single mother to operate a coffee kiosk in the Washington Convention Center. And just before I put this note together, we got a call out of the blue from one of our clients, a class member in a pay-to-pay case. Her husband had been charged illegal mortgage servicing payments, and just passed away. She couldn't believe she had just gotten a check for $2400 for her damages in that case, which will help her make ends meet at this difficult time.

These cases are why we practice law. All this work is done by a great, and growing, group of smart, nice people. We added thirty-eight employees in the last year, across all our offices. I think our folks added four new children to our ranks of dependents, with more little ones on the way.

We hope you'll enjoy this newsletter, and understand us a little bit better. Have a great 2023.

2022 Litigation Highlights

Bailey Glasser's trial lawyers fight tenaciously on behalf of our clients. We won numerous multi-million-dollar verdicts in 2022, obtained justice for others, and opposed the Johnson & Johnson's "Texas Two Step" maneuver.

BREAKING NEWS

On January 30, 2023, Bailey Glasser Won a Landmark Appellate Victory on Behalf of Consumers Originating From a February 2022 Trial

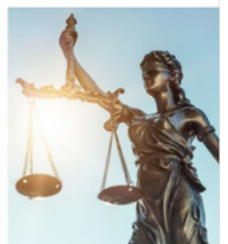

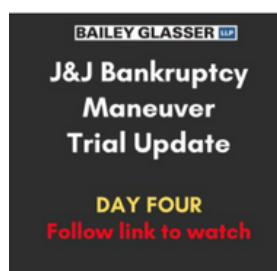

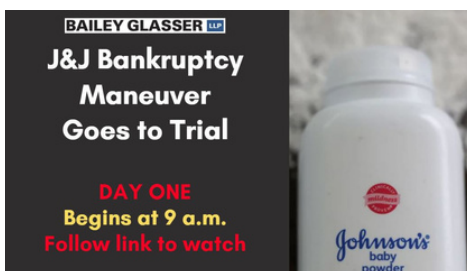

In a huge victory for individuals grievously harmed by Johnson & Johnson baby powder, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit roundly rejected Johnson & Johnson's attempt to shovel all 38,000 cases into a brand-new subsidiary which then, within hours of creation, declared bankruptcy. In strong language, the federal appeals court found that the JNJ/LTL petition "has no valid bankruptcy purpose" and dismissed the bankruptcy in its entirety, reversing a ruling by a lower bankruptcy court.

The dismissal of the LTL bankruptcy now allows plaintiffs harmed by J&J's consumer products to continue pursuing justice before a jury trial of their peers, a right afforded them by the United States Constitution.

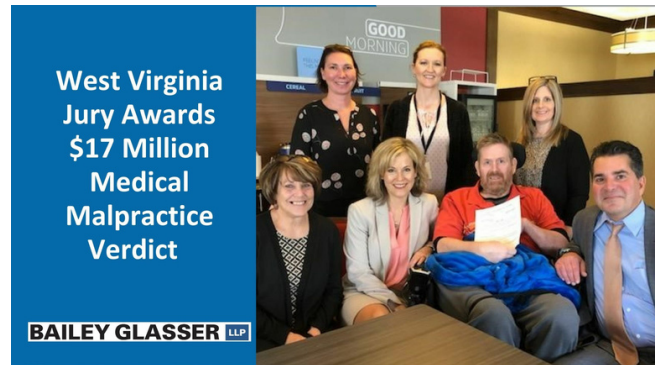

Brian A. Glasser was co-lead counsel to the trial team vindicated by the appeals court. Brian stated in a news release: "J&J has no special right to put talc victims in a bankruptcy box. It now has to face these claims in front of juries around the nation."

The BG trial team consisted of founding partner Brian Glasser and partners Cary Joshi, Kevin Barrett, The Hon. Tom Bennett, David Selby, D. Todd Mathews, Maggie Burrus, John Turner, Robert Bell, and Katherine Charonko, along with associates Elliott McGraw and Nicole Ballante.

2022 Litigation Highlights

Bailey Glasser obtained a $17 million jury verdict on behalf of our client, Mike Rodgers, who instead of receiving proper care for a spinal column injury, was rendered a paraplegic. Bailey Glasser partners Greg Haddad and Sharon Iskra tried the case over eight days in Charleston, West Virginia state court, in a matter that was heavily fought by the defendant who sought to avoid responsibility for his negligence.

Bailey Glasser Secures Jury Verdict on Behalf of Shonk Land Company

Bailey Glasser secured a unanimous jury verdict on behalf of Shonk Land Company in a matter that involved a breach of two oil & gas leases, tortious interference, intentional trespass, and unjust enrichment. Throughout the trial, the Bailey Glasser trial team of partner Nick Johnson and associate Sallie Gilbert proved that the defendants in this matter committed five separate breaches of Shonk's contractual rights of first refusal. In addition, we proved that one defendant, Diversified Gas & Oil Corporation, intentionally interfered with Shonk's Right of First Refusal by creating (and then lying about) an inflated property valuation that had no basis in fact.

BG took on Monsanto's Roundup weed killer, which is linked to the development of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, seeking damages for these injuries and Monsanto's failure to warn of the product's cancer risk. BG's trial team consisted of Brian Glasser, David Selby, Jackie Olinger Rochelle, Christina Hutchins, Leslie Brueckner, and Todd Mathews, along with David Wool of Wool Trial Law, and Joan Lockwood and Tom Neill of Gray Ritter Graham. By the fourth day of trial, the case resolved. Brian Glasser said, "We are very happy to have brought this matter to a successful resolution for our client Nathaniel Evans and his family."

Rhode Island Jury Awards $4.8M in Compensatory Damages to Victim of Davol and C.R. Bard Hernia Mesh

In September 2022, a Rhode Island jury found Davol and C.R. Bard liable for injuries caused by their hernia mesh product, which our team argued caused side effects to the plaintiff such as chronic pain, infections, and nerve damage, and that the company sold the devices despite knowledge of their risk to patients. The jury awarded compensatory damages of $4.8 million, plus interest, to our client Paul Trevino. BG's ESI team consisting of Partners Kate Charonko and Brian McAllister and associate Elizabeth Stryker, along with the trial team at Motley Rice, LLC, tried the case to verdict over the course of six weeks.

Title IX Turns 50

Title IX, a federal civil rights law passed in 1972, prohibits all educational institutions receiving federal funds from discriminating on the basis of sex. This includes almost all colleges and universities, public or private, and all public schools.

Bailey Glasser is a leading Title IX law firm in the United States. In 2022, we preserved women's gains in the landmark Brown University case, won a precedent-setting appeal against Michigan State University, and sued San Diego State University and the University of Central Oklahoma for violating Title IX. The law helped increase female participation by 614 percent at the college level and 1057 percent at the high school level.

Unfortunately, litigation is still essential because female student-athletes nationwide are being deprived of the equal opportunities to participate, athletic financial aid, and treatment the law requires. At Bailey Glasser, we continue the fight for true equality in sports.

Corporate Law Highlights

Our award-winning corporate lawyers handled deals across the country for corporate entities of all sizes, including government agencies, family businesses, energy companies, and media entities. We also handled millions of dollars in real estate transactions, and are grateful our clients trust us to handle their high-net-worth tax, trusts, estates, and probate work, as well as hiring us to be their outside general counsel.

2022 Representative Matters Include:

- Dickinson Group: BG represented a closely-held family corporation in a joint venture investment to develop three solar power projects on former surface mining projects.
- Tax Controversy: BG's tax team successfully resolved tax disputes for numerous clients, saving them millions of dollars.
- Kingdom Story Company: BG helped the leading independent Christian movie studio raise monies and navigate the release of multiple movies in 2022, and we also won a trademark case for them, via summary judgment.
- Innovative Health Sciences, Inc: BG assisted IHS with corporate and securities law matters including navigating litigation threats.
- Responsible Energy Operations, LLC: BG represented the energy company's coal mining business across two states and four complexes.
- Auto Loan Securitization: We represented an issuer of retail auto loans in a securitization transaction worth $36 million.
- Aegis Sortation, LLC: BG assisted on joint ventures, deploying capital, intellectual property matters, hiring of C-suite personnel, and solving issues which inevitably arise in a rapidly growing business. Aegis Sortation is a technology and innovation leader, offering proven solutions for the material handling industry.
- Capital raises: We supported our clients in securing business capital, and this year alone raised millions of dollars in funding.
- Sales of Multi-Generational Industrial Enterprise: We represented a family that built a multi-generational highly-technical industrial manufacturing and service provider in marketing, documenting, and closing the sale of the company to a strategic rollup partner and helping our client structure the retention of an equity stake in the acquirer.
- Amazon Seller: We structured the sale of a business with annual sales on Amazon in excess of $40 million and set a new standard for the sale of these types of businesses.

The African American Sports & Entertainment Group

Bailey Glasser's corporate group is proud to represent the African American Sports & Entertainment Group (AASEG) in its historic journey to acquire and redevelop the Oakland Coliseum Complex. The 130-acre property, home to the Oakland A's and former home of the Oakland Raiders and Golden State Warriors, will be the largest plot of land the City of Oakland has ever transferred to an African-American development group. BG lawyer Jade Smith-Williams serves as lead counsel for the AASEG in this historic initiative.

Beyond their plans to bring a new Black-women-owned WNBA franchise and Black-owned NFL team to Oakland, the AASEG's central mission is to use sports and entertainment to create economic and wealth-generating opportunities for Black and Brown residents.

As an Oakland native and former professional basketball player, Jade Smith-Williams can attest to the cultural significance of the AASEG's plans for the Coliseum Complex: "It's such an honor to represent and work alongside some of the most successful and highly-regarded Black business folks from Oakland. Their commitment to transforming the economic realities for communities that have been historically disregarded or excluded from the development process is front and center of everything they do. Unlike most major redevelopment projects in urban metropolitan cities, the AASEG has woven community participation in every phase of the project. This is a project 'for community, by community.'"

Bailey Glasser serves as AASEG's General Counsel. "The clients have been very clear that any outside firm or consultant they hire must be able to demonstrate a sincere and meaningful commitment to equity and diversity," says Smith-Williams. "The tide is shifting in the legal industry such that clients are now holding the legal community accountable to their diversity goals. It is a breath of fresh air."

Bailey Glasser is proud to partner with the AASEG in its mission to transform the City of Oakland through equity-focused development. Please enjoy the video below featuring the AASEG, as well as BG lawyers Jade Smith-Williams, Marc Weintraub, and Lorren Patterson.

Ben Bailey is no stranger to a challenge. From dealing with a serious injury leaving an established law firm to begin his own with modest resources as the epitome of perseverance, which has helped lead him to his current role Bailey & Glasser, LLP

Growing up in Parkersburg, WV, Bailey would stay home from school to watch Apollo space launches, which inspired him to want to become an astronaut. After coming to fruition, what did get to work for himself, something that he do. Bailey credits his father as one of his mentors, not only as a businessman but as a man. Bailey's parents, Bob and Penny, were happily married for nearly 70 years and instilled a sense of family in him and his three siblings, Brent, Ann and Matt.

After earning a bachelor's degree in economics from Washington and Lee University, Bailey decided to attend law school at West Virginia University.

THE DRUM MAJOR INSTITUTE and DRUM MAJORS FOR CHANGE

Bailey Glasser represents two organizations integrally connected to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and now operated by his son Martin Luther King, III, and his wife, Arndrea Waters King.

The Drum Major Institute (DMI) was co-founded in 1961 by Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. who often used the phrase “drum major instinct” when talking about leadership. DMI leads through collaboration by convening leaders and organizations to identify peaceful solutions to the triple evils of racism, poverty, and violence.

Bailey Glasser lawyers Marc Weintraub, Michael Murphy, Stephen Putnoki-Higgins, Katherine Charonko, and Lorren Patterson advise DMI’s directors, members, and officers while serving as its outside counsel to ensure DMI runs in accordance with its bylaws and applicable laws.

Bailey Glasser's 2022 LCLD Pathfinders

Bailey Glasser is a proud law firm member of the Leadership Council on Legal Diversity ("LCLD"). The LCLD is made up of more than 400 corporate chief legal officers and law firm managing partners who are working to build a more open and diverse legal profession.

Our 2022 LCLD Pathfinders are
Britney A. Littles and Jade Smith-Williams.

As another reflection of its commitment to diversity, Bailey Glasser was only one of 26 law firms that piloted Diversity Lab's Midsize Mansfield Rule. The Midsize Mansfield rule is for law firms between 25 and 150 lawyers, and was designed to boost diversity in leadership for firms with smaller lawyer populations, fewer office locations, and leaner firm leadership structures. The certification period for the Midsize version is 18 months long, to provide ample time for the participating firms to take action on the required hiring, promotion, and leadership transition activities.

Elizabeth Ryan
Diversity Partner

Through our involvement with programs like the Diversity Lab's Mansfield Rule Certification Program, and the Leadership Council on Legal Diversity, we are working hard to make our firm more reflective of the world we live in through recruitment and hiring. But our focus does not end with hiring. We are committed to providing a wide range of opportunities for our diverse lawyers to play key roles in business development, significant cases, client meetings, webinars, and serve on firm committees. Our development and retention efforts include partner and peer mentoring, one-on-one business development coaching, and participation in the LCLD Pathfinder Program. And through our representation of organizations like the LVE Foundation, the Drum Major Institute, the African American Sports & Entertainment Group, and of other Black-owned businesses, we are working to support racial equity and change in the broader community.

Pro Bono

Since 2021, Bailey Glasser lawyers Britney Littles, Alex Serber, and Stephen Putnoki-Higgins, along with then-2021 D.C. summer associates (and now new full-time lawyers!) Ashton Jones-Doherty and Savanna Jones, had the opportunity to work with a Black female-owned nonprofit, the LVE Foundation, to draft corporate documents and register the corporation for 501(c)(3) status.

LVE Foundation, Inc. (aka "LoVE BACK") is a nonprofit offering inclusive business development and financial literacy education to Black and Brown youth in underserved communities with career aspirations in the field of music.

Congratulations to D.C. entrepreneur Skyler Kelley for securing lease rights to open a new Brij Coffeehouse kiosk at the Walter E. Washington Convention Center in Washington, D.C. Drawing upon her lived experience as an unhoused single mother, Skyler's vision includes reinvesting a portion of Brij's earnings in the community through nonprofits that help neighbors in need. Skyler is passionate about eradicating homelessness and bridging gaps among D.C.'s diverse community. Bailey Glasser attorneys Kurt Gleeson, Michael Murphy, Lorren Patterson, and Greg Payton worked with Skyler on a pro bono basis to secure the lease and handle several corporate organizational matters for her company.

Thank you for taking the time to read our 2022 in Review newsletter.

We hope you enjoy this special New Year's video message from our firm. We are deeply grateful for your friendship and the work we have done together, and we wish you good health and good tidings in 2023.

Bailey & Glasser, LLP is a national law firm that handles our clients' most challenging and consequential legal issues, in litigation and in corporate matters. We bring a trial-focused approach to litigation for plaintiffs and defendants that vigorously protects the interests of our clients - businesses in many industries and of all sizes (from Fortune 500 companies to family offices), large class actions to protect consumers, as well as individuals with claims of all kinds, including commercial, personal injury, and civil rights. Our sophisticated corporate practice provides strategic guidance, counseling, and innovative solutions for many kinds of corporate, real estate, and financial transactions. Those projects include business formations, securities offerings, mergers and acquisitions, real estate development, leasing, personal property transactions, executive hiring and compensation, ownership disputes, and commercial lending.
