

Banking & Financial Services

Bailey Glasser counsels banks and financial services companies on both their day-to-day operations and wider strategic objectives. Uncertain economies demand legal strategies that address regulatory and enforcement risks and the costs of compliance.

We partner with our clients on all legal issues in banking including lending, collecting, debt restructuring, bank mergers and acquisitions, regulatory demands, financial technology, and the compliance challenges that have come with reform.

Commercial Loans

Bailey Glasser represents businesses and individuals borrowing funds for a diverse range of commercial purposes from simple land acquisition to capital equipment leasing, to corporate bond issuance, to refinance existing revolving and term debt. From organizing entity and asset holding structure before seeking debt all the way to closing, we work with each of our borrower clients to negotiate the best possible loan terms and structure then document the deal in understandable terms that can be administered during the term of the loan.

We also represent numerous traditional lenders and non-traditional financiers conducting borrower and loan due diligence followed by negotiation and documentation of loan terms, closing the transaction and filing liens ranging from traditional UCC and real property liens to marine and aircraft liens.

Fintech

Our multidisciplinary team of lawyers advises financial institutions about the legal issues that arise during the development and implementation of financial technology. We combine strategic regulatory advice, transactional counseling, and apply in-depth knowledge of working with clients in the financial services industry. We work with established financial institutions and start-up companies alike, as they have acquired, invested in, developed, implemented and brought to market new financial technologies, platforms, products and services.
