

Criminal Defense & Internal Investigations

Bailey Glasser has a proven track record handling high-profile criminal defense matters and sensitive internal investigations. We have defended companies and individuals in federal and state courts, in grand jury investigations, and before multiple federal and state agencies.

We have represented business executives, elected officials, doctors, and others in tax evasion, fraud, public corruption, and similar white-collar investigations throughout the East Coast. We have also defended clients in high-profile cases in state court and before a variety of investigative bodies. Many of our greatest successes in this area are never publicly revealed, as we often resolve investigations for our clients quietly – and favorably – without any public litigation.

Our group includes former prosecutors, federal law clerks, and investigators who have the unique knowledge and experience to obtain the best results possible for our clients. These skilled courtroom advocates find creative solutions to protect our clients' interests all the way through a criminal trial and any possible appeal.

We are also routinely hired by companies and other lawyers to conduct sensitive internal investigations into possible wrongdoing. We efficiently handle these investigations while minimizing the collateral consequences to our clients.
