Will Flynn focuses his practice on consumer protection, with an emphasis on complex class-action litigation, including claims for Telephone Consumer Protection Act violations, privacy breaches, oil and gas, and more.

Prior to beginning his legal career, Will worked as political campaign organizer, working for Obama 2012's presidential campaign, and a union organizer, working for Service Employees International Union. Will's enterprising spirit also took him to California, where he spent four years immersed in the start-up technology field in Los Angeles, helping build two successful businesses.

In law school, Will received four CALI Awards in law, including one for his work as a student clinician in the United States Supreme Court Clinic and another in Trial Advocacy.
